

stood there waiting to see if there was anything doing and ready to fish in case—

BY MR. STUDER:

Q Were you near or with Eger?

A I was not far from him. I was pretty close to him because I know when we both got tired of waiting, I said there was nothing more doing, Eger came back to the house with me and we had a drink of ginger ale or root beer or some kind of soft drinks which I always keep in the ice box.

BY MR. HEEIFFER:

Q Did you have any conversation at all as to whether the fish were pulling or not pulling with Eger?

A Oh, we talked about all kinds of things, you know, nothing in particular and Eger went home and he has that time very clear in his mind when he went home that evening. He says that when he went in the house and went upstairs to bed it was 10.25.

Q Mr. Stevens, was Eger examined by Walsh or any of the State Police?

A Yes, he was examined by Walsh and Eger told me afterwards that just — no, he was examined by Simpson over in Toms River; he took him over there, and that was
